ENVIRONMENTAL WELLBEING IS A PRIORITY OF STATE POLICY

The President of Turkmenistan Takes Part in the Nationwide Greening Campaign

With the participation of President Serdar Berdimuhamedov, the autumn season of the nationwide tree-planting campaign has started.

In the period of the Revival of the New Era of the Powerful State, the initiatives of the Hero-Arkadag to transform our Motherland into a flourishing oasis are being successfully implemented under the wise leadership of President Serdar Berdimuhamedov. The tree-planting campaign is one of the most important national events, symbolising the country's commitment to the principles of environmental wellbeing.

The nationwide tree-planting campaign is not only an environmental but also a significant socio-cultural event, promoting social cohesion. Such events instil in the younger generation a culture of caring for nature and harmonious coexistence with the environment. In our country, planting saplings has become a noble tradition and is a priority of the state policy aimed at implementing large-scale reforms that facilitate the creation of new parks and forests and the enrichment of the vegetable kingdom of the Turkmen land. Thanks to such systematic initiatives, the capital and other cities of our country are being covered with green spaces.

The car of the head of state arrived in the southern part of the capital, where a nationwide tree-planting ceremony would take place.

Participants of the ceremony warmly welcomed President Serdar Berdimuhamedov.

Performances by the country's masters of art added a vibrant touch to the event.

After warmly greeting the participants of the celebration, the President headed to a specially prepared area for planting.

There, a representative of the younger generation asked Arkadagly Hero Serdar to initiate the greening campaign.

By planting a 12-year-old Turkmen juniper, President Serdar Berdimuhamedov opened the autumn greening campaign.

Notably, the age of the planted tree coincides with the significant date – December 12 – International Neutrality Day.

The participation of the head of state in this large-scale event, which was also organised throughout the country, enhanced its significance. It clearly demonstrated that national traditions, shaped by our wise ancestors over centuries, are evolving in the spirit of the modern era.

Following the example of the head of state, the action participants began planting trees. Planting saplings of various species, taking into account the soil and climatic conditions of this area, will allow creating green spaces in the areas at the foot of the mountains.

Turkmenistan actively integrates sustainable development principles into public policy and implements large-scale environmental initiatives aimed at environment protection, the rational use of natural resources and the mitigation of the impacts of climate change. Cooperation with the UN and other major international organisations in the important sphere such as climate change is a priority of Turkmenistan's foreign-policy strategy, as it actively participates in addressing the important challenges facing humanity.

By participating in dozens of United Nations environmental conventions, Turkmenistan has secured broad international support for its initiatives at high-level forums. These include the establishment of the UN Regional Climate Technology Centre for Central Asia in Ashgabat, the development of the UN Water Strategy and the UN Special Programme for the Aral Sea Basin, the designation of the Aral Sea as a separate area of UN activities and the preservation of the ecological wellbeing of the Caspian Sea.

...During the event, the President asked several Deputy Prime Ministers about the ongoing work.

Deputy Prime Minister T. Atahalliyev, who supervises the agro-industrial complex, reported on the progress of the nationwide greening campaign and the activities under the National Afforestation Programme.

The head of state noted Turkmenistan's environmental policy was aimed at creating a favourable and sustainable natural environment and instructed those efforts to transform the country into a flourishing land be constantly monitored.

Then, the Deputy Chairman of the Cabinet of Ministers B. Annamamedov, who oversees the capital city, reported on the ongoing improvement and landscaping efforts in the country's capital.

The President of Turkmenistan noted the importance of greening our capital, one of the greenest and most environmentally friendly cities in the region, and instructed the Deputy Prime Minister to constantly monitor measures for the further development of Ashgabat.

As is known, environmental issues are key ones in the implementation of the urban development programme, being successfully implemented by the President of the country. In accordance with the Programme "Revival of the New Era of the Powerful State: The National Programme of the Socioeconomic Development of Turkmenistan in 2022–2052" and the Programme of the President of Turkmenistan of the Socioeconomic Development of the Country in 2022–2028, large-scale work is being carried out to create a clean environment in our country. In recent years, the look of the Turkmen capital has changed beyond recognition. This is the result of the successful implementation of the programme of the capital's development, led by President Serdar Berdimuhamedov.

As in all regions of the country, forested areas, including those planted with junipers, are expanding in the Ashgabat foothills. Awarding the city of Ashgabat an International Certificate for its contribution to the initiative "Trees in Cities" of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe through greening campaigns is an achievement for the country in developing environmental diplomacy and confirmation that our people's efforts to protect nature are highly valued.

The new city of Arkadag can be considered a promising platform for piloting innovations not only in the economic and social spheres, but also in environment protection. As is known, the initiator of this megaproject was the National Leader of the Turkmen people, Chairman of the Halk Maslahaty Gurbanguly Berdimuhamedov, and its implementation continues through the efforts of President Serdar Berdimuhamedov. This smart city, having no analogues in the region, offers all the modern amenities for comfortable living and working, and most importantly, it fully complies with environmental standards and blends harmoniously into the surrounding environment.

Planting shade trees around cities and other populated areas ensures a clean environment and prevents air pollution. In desert conditions, such plantings reliably protect populated areas from wind and dust. Dense green spaces also play a significant role in reducing the impact of mudflows and generally creating a favourable microclimate.

The National Afforestation Programme of Turkmenistan is the main document defining the state policy in forestry, environment protection and adaptation to climate change. The programme aims to promote the sustainable management of forests, their conservation and the enhancement of their ecological and economic potential. The Programme also includes measures to preserve natural forests, to create artificial forest zones and to increase the resilience of ecosystems and forests to climate change. The Programme also envisages a number of other specific measures, taking into account the soil and climatic conditions and characteristics of natural ecosystems in various regions of the country.

The National Afforestation Programme is closely aligned with the objectives of Turkmenistan's National Climate Change Strategy and aims to comprehensively address environmental issues.

International cooperation is an important component of the implementation of this programme. Our country collaborates productively with United Nations agencies, such as the Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) on sustainable forest management, the UNDP on enhancing ecosystem resilience and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) on environment protection and biodiversity conservation.

Overall, international cooperation is aimed at conducting joint scientific research, establishing regional research and practical centres and introducing new methods into forest management and reforestation systems.

The conscientious work of the participants of this year's greening campaign is a vivid symbol of our people's unity, their unwavering commitment to noble causes and proof that the centuries-old traditions of our ancestors are successfully realised in the modern era. In addition to the mass planting of tree saplings, work was also carried out to maintain previously established forest areas. All of this is crucial for maintaining the cleanliness and beautification of parks and the growth of trees.

Upon completing the greening campaign, President Serdar Berdimuhamedov bid a warm farewell to the participants and left the venue.

During the nationwide greening campaign, 449,464 tree saplings were planted across the country. In addition to cleaning and landscaping parks and forest areas, a total of 1,997,775 trees were cared for.

Thus, the mass tree-planting ceremony became a vivid demonstration of our country's worthy contribution to global efforts to ensure ecological wellbeing, to protect the environment and to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals in the period of the Revival of the New Era of the Powerful State.

THE PRESIDENT OF TURKMENISTAN RECEIVED THE HEAD OF THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

On November 11, 2025, President Serdar Berdimuhamedov received Masato Kanda, President of the Asian Development Bank, who was visiting the country.

Expressing gratitude for the time devoted to the meeting, the guest noted the important role of neutral Turkmenistan in strengthening peace and stability in the Central Asian region.

Warmly welcoming the head of a major financial institution and expressing confidence that this visit would facilitate an exchange of views on the further development of bilateral economic cooperation, the Head of state wished the scheduled talks success.

Emphasizing that Turkmenistan's economic strategy places great importance on expanding international partnerships, President Berdimuhamedov noted the effectiveness of our country's long-standing cooperation with the ADB.

As noted, over the past 25 years, the Asian Development Bank has participated in the financing of a number of projects in Turkmenistan. Today, the bilateral partnership is implemented within the framework of Turkmenistan's cooperation strategy.

The need to intensify cooperation in the area of financial, credit, and consulting services for small and medium-sized businesses was emphasized.

As is known, on May 17 of this year, a Memorandum of Mutual Understanding signed between the State Committee for the Construction of Arkadag City and the Asian Development Bank. This opens up opportunities for expanding partnerships in the areas of energy, water and energy conservation, and the use of renewable energy sources in the new city, built based on the "smart city" concept.

Further strengthening of cooperation in the fuel and energy sector was also identified as an important area of cooperation.

Concluding the meeting, President Serdar Berdimuhamedov and President of the Asian Development Bank Masato Kanda exchanged best wishes, expressing confidence in the continuation of their mutually beneficial bilateral partnership.
